Subject: [EXTERNAL] Homeless Community Hubs

I believe that London should create homes throughout the city for people who are struggling to afford safe places to live. This action will allow people to interact with a diversity of the London population and if children are involved attend schools that will the younger population. So many good lifestyle examples can be learned by watching and interacting with different cultures.

If we put all hubs close together we will not create a beneficial learning environment for adults and their children.

I am very surprised that the above approach is not what has been planned from the outset.
