

The City Symposium presents an evening to learn about

INCOME DISPARITY

How can London address the growing gap between the rich and the poor?

@trishhennessy

Trish Hennessy is director of strategic issues for the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives (CCPA) and has also directed the CCPA's income inequality project for the past five years. She's a former journalist with a BA from Queen's University in Sociology, a BSW from Carleton University in Social Work and a MA from University of Toronto/OISE in Sociology

@michaelshapcott

Michael Shapcott is Director, Affordable Housing and Social Innovation at the Wellesley Institute, non-profit research and policy dedicated to advancing urban health. Michael has worked extensively in Toronto, in many parts of Canada, nationally and internationally on social innovation, the non-profit sector, civic engagement, housing and housing rights, poverty, social exclusion, urban health and health equity.

@mikepmoffatt

Mike Moffatt is an economist in the Business, Economics and Public Policy group at the Richard Ivey School of Business at the University of Western Ontario. Mike is a frequent commentator on economic issues, having made over 100 media appearances in 2011 alone. He has written editorials that have appeared in a number of outlets including Canadian Business and the Ottawa Citizen.

Tuesday, December 13, 6:30 p.m.
Wolf Performance Hall
(Central Library, 251 Dundas Street)

Free to attend. No registration required. All welcome.

citysymposium.com | @citysymposium

