Occupation: Director

Work experience: I am currently a director, with overall responsibility for a division of our company. I have been involved in transportation, logistics, and supply chain management for over 20 years. I owned a business for 5 years previous to that. I have successfully created and managed teams of people for much of my career. I am on the Executive Committee of my current company, and have been at previous companies. I am relied upon for strategic direction and business acumen and have many testimonials attesting to my credentials in this regard.

Education: I have college diplomas in both Marketing and Finance from Fanshawe College. I have two professional designations – Professional Logistician (P.Log.), and CITT Certified Logistics Professional (CCLP).

Skills: My expertise includes finance, economics, purchasing, negotiation, analysis, reporting, communication, change management, strategy, leadership, project management, efficiency improvement.

Interest reason: I have lived in London all of my life. I ran for city council in the recent election because I care and I believe I can make a substantial contribution. Throughout that process I raised my level of engagement and would like to maintain it. I would be happy to serve on any body and will be applying for a few. In this case however, the Thames River means a great deal to me as I have lived within a few hundred meters of the north branch in north London, since I was born almost 50 years ago. I grew up on it, in it, and near it. I am an avid hiker and naturalist. I believe it to be one of London's greatest assets and it would be an honour to help govern the future of it and the watershed.

Contributions: I am an extremely dedicated individual. If I commit to something, I can be counted on to contribute. I am intelligent enough to analyze and evaluate circumstances, and identify opportunities for improvement, whether or not I have specific expertise in the subject matter. I am polite, and respectful of other people and their contributions.

Consequently I am usually appreciated on a team.

Past contributions: I am the current 'Past President' of the London District Transportation Club. I held that appointment for two years even though it's typically a one year mandate. I was treasurer for two years previous to that. I am currently on an advisory panel for the Elgin Middlesex Oxford Workforce Planning & Development Board, where we are creating an awareness program to address the skills gap in the transportation / Logistics / Supply Chain Industry in the London area. I am also on an advisory panel at Fanshawe College involving the development of a post graduate supply chain program at the Lawrence Kinlin business school. In business, I have been on countless committees and boards at all levels.

Interpersonal: I hope I have addressed this throughout all of my above answers. I am constantly being approached to participate on various panels, and it's exactly because of my nature in this regard. I am an introvert, and an intellect. I am a better listener than speaker. I ask many questions to ensure a full grasp of the topic. I take great care to show respect in all forms of communication, while contributing. My success in business and demand for community involvement is directly proportional to these attributes.

Interview interest: Yes
