

TO: London Heritage Planning Committee

Regarding the preservation of the house at 759 Elizabeth St. I am Jean-Marie Ross Mackinnon, the fourth generation of my family to have called it my home. My great grandfather bought it from Sir John Carling and a total of six generations have lived there. It is unfortunate that it was sold to someone who wants to demolish it. We called it "Carling Cottage" because of its heritage and appearance.

About 1975 research found that the house was built in 1827. This makes it older than Eldon House. It would be a shame for London to lose one of its early historical sites.

Yours Truly

Jean-Marie Ross Mackinnon
