

Committee: London Housing Advisory Committee

Organization/Sector represented: Private Sector, Housing

Name: Jens Stickling

Address:

36 Duke Street
London, Ontario
N6J 2X4

Occupation: Affordable Housing Developer, property management

Work experience: 15 years in residential and commercial real estate development and property management. Development of seniors housing project and management of a diverse portfolio of downtown properties

Education: MBA at the Richard Ivey School of Business, Canadian Securities course, member of The London Property Management Association, Owner of a construction company

Skills: Past Chair of London Homeless Coalition, Board Member of The Rose Land Trust, non profit, Trustee on The Waldorf School Board,

Interest reason: The city of London has a very progressive council and Staff along with an ambitious plan to develop London's core. I am a strong believer in social housing and infill development. This vision is consistent with Rethink London and the current London Plan. It would be exciting to participate in this vision.

Contributions: Professional experience in providing, building and management of residential and commercial real estate combined with a passion for social justice and viable development. I would bring a perspective of social and business angles to the table.

Past contributions: Chair of London Homeless Coalition around housing first strategies, Trustee on a non-profit land trust for the benefit of local food security and management of real estate, board member of the building committee at the London Waldorf School

Interpersonal: The London Waldorf School board is based on a model of decision making by consensus. This involves listening careful to everyone's point of view and finding common ground to move forward as a group. The Waldorf board has a remarkable record of combining different stakeholders (faculty, students, parents, and staff) and achieving remarkable results with limited resources. The London Homeless coalition is another example of a diverse group of agencies and individuals where my experience as chair will serve me well on the LHAC board

Interview interest: Yes
