5th Largest in Canada

CELEBRATING ARTS + CULTURE FROM COAST TO COAST TO COAST

CULTURE DAYS BACKGROUND

In 2007, inspired by the success and impact of Quebec's Journées de la culture weekend, leaders of Canada's largest arts organizations (as participants in The Canadian Arts Summit) commissioned a feasibility study to assess the viability and appropriateness of launching an annual cross-country celebration of arts and culture. Journées de la culture, produced annually by Culture pour tous since 1997, is a three-day internationally-recognized Canadian event model for promoting public participation and engagement in arts and culture.

In response to this growing recognition that a vibrant arts and cultural sector contributes directly to a healthy and economically viable society, Culture Days weekend, the Pan-Canadian celebration of arts and culture was created. Since its launch in 2010, Culture Days has generated enthusiastic interest, participation and support from a rapidly growing network of artists, organizations, municipalities and media as well as the private and public sectors across the country. In London, the London Arts Council (LAC) manages all aspects of this signature cultural event as well as serving on the Ontario Task Force as a resource to the provincial and national Culture Days Organizers.

CULTURE DAYS PHILOSOPHY

Culture is everywhere and is a part of every moment of our lives. We celebrate Culture Days to recognize the special place that arts and culture occupies in our lives. Culture Days is a collaborative movement that relies on participation. Everyone has a role they can play, as a citizen, as a businessperson, as a cultural professional, on behalf of an organization, or in any other imaginable way.

The mission of Culture Days is to:

- Highlight the importance of arts and cultural activity to a community's quality of life.
- Help the public become aware of the many opportunities available to participate in arts and cultural activities in every community.
- Draw attention to the different cultures, heritages, cultural workers, and artists that contribute to the development and vitality of our communities.
- Inspire Canadians with experiences that remind them of the benefits of cultural engagement for their own well-being.
- Promote and reveal the creativity of our citizens, creators, organizations, and communities through marketing and public awareness campaigns.
- Encourage cross-disciplinary and cross-sector collaborations creating a legacy of strong connections between citizens, cultural workers, artists, and their communities.
- Allow the arts, cultural and the general community to build lasting relationships with each other, and support the continued growth and sustainability of Communities.

LONDON CULTURE DAYS 2012 – THE EVENT

London Culture Days 2012 will take place on September 28, 29, 30. The weekend will feature different events happening at different times throughout the day and evening. Embracing the core vision that every individual- regardless of age, location or experience- has the right to access and participate actively in arts and culture, London Culture Days offers hundreds of free hands-on and interactive activities inviting Londoners and visitors to participate "behind the scenes" and discover the cultural life of their community. Culture Days directly facilitates interaction between creators and citizens thereby increasing the understanding and appreciation of our arts and cultural mosaic.

Over 100 organizations spread across the city will feature over 150 activities that engage Londoners in the world of the arts, multi-cultural, and heritage sectors. In collaboration with heritage buildings of Doors Open London 2012 (administered by the London Heritage Council), all 16 branches of London Public Library and the City of London Parks and Recreation Department – Community Centres, arts organizations & venues, artists studios and cultural groups who may not have a venue or space of their own will be matched with suitable venues for their performances, demonstrations and workshops.

An exciting new aspect of London Culture Days 2012, is the participation of 35 of London's multicultural groups (please see attached a full list of confirmed participants). These organizations add an extra dimension to London Culture Days by highlighting the artistic and cultural traditions of the growing diverse communities within London bringing together new comers, immigrants, current and prospective citizens of London with the vibrant arts and cultural community that surrounds them daily. This will enable new immigrants* and citizens to easily become involved with their community (e.g. volunteer opportunities, participation in programs, attendance at performances, special events, festivals, tours etc.) Promoting the varied and inclusive arts/culture sector of a community facilitates change, shares knowledge/learning experiences and creates lasting benefits for all.

With London Culture Days 2012 and Doors Open London taking place in partnership over the same weekend, and coinciding with Western University Homecoming, September 28, 29 and 30 will be the largest celebration of arts, heritage and culture ever seen in London. This mega weekend of cultural recognition and celebration offers the arts, heritage and multicultural sectors of London the opportunity to collaboratively and collectively showcase the artistic and cultural life of our community.

London Culture Days 2012 will execute a multi-layered marketing and promotion campaign to our target market of cultural populations, tourists, families, university/college populations and young professionals (ages 25 - 45) and those loyal participants to whom Culture Days has become a much anticipated yearly event.

We will continue with our strong web presence at www.culturedays.ca as well as on Facebook and Twitter, which is vital to ensure that younger markets find the event accessible and relevant. LAC will be promoting the event on the arts portal at: www.londonarts.ca

London Arts Council (London Culture Days) along with the London Heritage Council (Doors Open London) are collaborating to create and distribute a free event map guide that is accessible to the public at both Tourism London locations, at all sixteen branches of the London Public Library, at all London Culture Days and Doors Open London site locations, and at our shared office. The intent is also to have copies of the map guide distributed (155,000 copies) in the London Free Press as it was last year through Doors Open London.

HISTORY

LONDON CULTURE DAYS 2011 – NAMED 5TH LARGEST CULTURE DAYS IN CANADA!

Celebrated on the weekend of September 29th to October 1st, 2011 we grew to over 65 registered London Culture Days activities, London's celebration was the fifth largest in the Canada. This was the first year for a special partnership between the London Public Library and the London Arts Council with all 16 branches of the Library open for London Culture Days activities. This partnership enabled individual artists and smaller cultural groups to take their practice out of private studios into the accessible spaces of library branches allowing the public to discover and engage with their work. London was one of only three communities in Ontario to undertake a launch event, which took place at Museum London the evening of Friday, September 30. Themed "A trip around the world" the event showcased 91 performers from London's multicultural community. London Culture Days has given Londoners a comprehensive opportunity to become aware of and participate in the rich and diverse arts and multicultural life London has to offer.

LONDON CULTURE DAYS 2010

In its inaugural year, Londoners celebrated Culture Days along with dozens of other Canadian communities, and kicked off a whole year of celebrating arts and culture in our city. London Culture Days activities were held across the city on September 24 to 26. The concept was to have the public participate in free, hands-on, interactive activities as they discovered the cultural life of their local community. The London Arts Council coordinated and promoted over 50 activities within London Culture Days. It was a weekend to celebrate and engage in the arts and culture that enrich our everyday lives, and to invest in London's vibrant arts sector.
