

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Camden Terrace

Why is it that our civic leaders are so intent on destroying the heritage and character – i.e. the actual reason why people want to live in London, in favour of individual greed in the form of substandard developments? Why is that in every agreement made, the City is the first to step away from its promises in support of these so call ‘developers’? This is just further evidence of our failed civic leadership who once again have abdicated their authority to greed. How sad!
