

Evaluation of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest: 179 Ann Street

1.0 Background

1.1 Property Location

The property at 179 Ann Street is located on the south side of Ann Street east of St. George Street (Appendix A).

1.2 Cultural Heritage Status

The property at 179 Ann Street was added to the Inventory of Heritage Resources in 2020. The property at 179 Ann Street is a potential cultural heritage resource.

1.3 Description

179 Ann Street is a side-hall plan vernacular cottage with typical symmetry, hipped roof and local London buff brick of the mid-19th century, built prior to 1881.

1.4 Property History

The historic Carling's Creek, though now largely underground (a "lost creek"), nevertheless retains strong historical resonances to this day. It was described as a potential mill seat—a site of economic potential—in 1793 (See Appendix C). This was one of the small number of significant features noted about London by the Simcoe expedition that decided London's location. The creek still empties into the river just south of Ann Street Park, and is also daylit (i.e., visible) between Waterloo and Colborne near Pall Mall. The property at 179 Ann Street backs on to the former creekbed.

1.4.1 Joseph Hamilton's house at 179 Ann Street

The property at 179 Ann Street was owned by brewer John Hamilton, and lived in by his son, brewer Joseph Hamilton, following his marriage to Susannah Fletcher, and before he took the reins of the Kent Brewery. John Hamilton and his son Joseph Hamilton ran the Kent Brewery at 197 Ann Street (the third most significant historic brewery in London after Carling's and Labatt's). Between them, John and Joseph Hamilton ran the Kent Brewery for 55 years.

1.4.2 The historical significance of the Kent Brewery

Joseph Hamilton ran the The Kent Brewery, which is historically significant to London because, as brewing historian Glen Phillips notes, "the main building is the largest surviving brewery artifact from Victorian London Middlesex." Along with flour milling and lumbering, brewing stands as one of Canada's earliest industries. The brewing history in London is significant on a national scale with some of the largest breweries in Canadian history, Labatt and Carling, having their roots here. Brewers that were able to do well in their own local markets were well situated when the Canadian Pacific Railway came through London. It enabled them to be able to transport ale across the country and dominate larger markets. London's dynamic licensed liquor trade, pronounced early military presence, and its rising population were enticing factors for the several brewers who arrived on the local scene during the 1840s. The majority of Londoners, additionally, were of English, Scottish or Irish descent, all strong brewing nations, and belonged primarily to those religious denominations not prone to temperance.

The years 1857 to 1861 were the hardest years, financially, that the brewing industry in London had seen to date. Canada was in the grips of the first worldwide economic crisis, triggered by the Panic of 1857, which began in the United States on August 24, 1857. In 1859, during this general economic depression, Henry Marshall and John Hammond opened the Kent Brewery on lot 3, on the south side of Ann Street, between Sarnia (Richmond) and Talbot. The brewery's washhouse would later be built on lot 4. In 1861, the economic climate, and strong competition from the city's two largest breweries, forced the original owners of the Kent Brewery out of business within two years.

Marshall and Hammond's successors, Francis L. Dundas and John Phillips, made enlargements and additions to the brewery. However, Dundas and Phillips were even less fortunate. After only six months, Phillips dissolved his partnership with Dundas. Three months after that, Phillips too gave up. In November 1861, John Hamilton, a brewer and maltster who had run the Knabbie Street Brewery in Dunfermline, Scotland, moved to Canada and took up the business, living in a house on Ann Street near the brewery. Hamilton completely turned the brewery around and made a comfortable profit.

John Hamilton was born July 12, 1824, in Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland to John Hamilton (b. April 17, 1791, Dunfermline-d. 26 May 1861) and Janet McNab (b. 1796, Scotland).

John married Agnes Horn (also of Dunfermline). They had a son, Joseph, and a daughter, Elizabeth. Joseph would come to head the family brewing business. Elizabeth would marry Samuel Arscott (1849–1922), son of Richard Arscott, founder of the Arscott Tannery. The Arscott tannery was another London industry that had its beginnings on Ann Street next to Carling's Creek, less than a block from the Kent Brewery. Elizabeth married, in other words, her near neighbour. Samuel Arscott would go on to build one of Canada's largest tanneries, in Benton, New Brunswick, and also run three tanneries in Walkerton.

John Hamilton briefly held a partnership in the brewery with Daniel Morgan, who also lived on Ann Street (1863 City Directory). The partnership lasted until the mid-1860s, but Hamilton soon operated the enterprise alone.

In reflecting on the Kent Brewery during the Hamilton era, brewing historian Glen Phillips believes that, "ultimately [Hamilton's] success proved that even the humble could be mighty in their own modest ways."¹² In 1870, the 8,000 gallons of ale and porter produced at the Kent Brewery netted Hamilton an income of $500.

The Kent Brewery was situated in 1859 on lot number 3 on the South Side of Ann Street. By 1 April 1872, John Hamilton has become sufficiently prosperous that he was able to purchase all of the land between his brewery and St. George St. (lots 4-7). In present day terms, these properties are the former brewery washhouse (lot 4), the Hamilton homestead (183 Ann Street, or lot 5), the house where Joseph lived (179 Ann Street, or lot 6), and the house where John Arscott, one of their relations-by-marriage, lived from 1894 until at least 1900 (175 Ann Street, lot 7).

From 1873 to 1884, a new era in the history of beer was born in Ontario. The birth of beer branding was characterized by stiff competition, and many of the smaller breweries in London like John Allasters' Dundas Street Brewery in the East End, Robert Arkell's Kensington Brewery, and David Haystead's Victoria Brewery did not survive.

While other small breweries went out of business for various reasons, including increased competition, temperance, and fires, the Kent Brewery rose steadily in popularity. Stories about the Kent Brewery were picked up by The Globe [precursor to the Globe & Mail], suggesting a brewery with more than local significance. The central factor in John Hamilton's success was his marketing strategy, and the recognition that he was not going to overpower Labatt and Carling on volume and area of distribution. The Kent Brewery's growth relied on focused sales, branding, and persistent advertising. On October 9th, 1887, John Hamilton passed away and the business was taken over by his son, Joseph. At this juncture, Joseph Hamilton had at least 14 years of experience working at the Kent Brewery before he assumed the reins.

Over the next five years, Joseph Hamilton managed to nearly triple the brewery's commercial worth. In October 1888, a year after John died, the London Advertiser noted that Joseph Hamilton had managed to rapidly build up his locally-based business. Joseph Hamilton's adoption of "London Porter" as his brand played on a centuries-old tradition of well-regarded porters brewed in London, England. According to Phillips, promotional slogans like,

"Hamilton's London Porter is Universally Acknowledged to be the Peer of all Porters";

"Hamilton's London Porter still maintains its high standard of excellence, never deviating except for the better";

"Hamilton's London Porter is unsurpassed by any Canadian Stout. You can always rely on the quality of this article";

"Hamilton's London Porter is equal to the best imported. Sells on its own merits. You cannot make a mistake if you can ask for Hamilton's";

"Hamilton's London Porter--The Most Recommended Beverage on the Market"

could now be regularly found next to the London Free Press masthead. The Kent Brewery's focus on a niche market—catering to local tastes by selling a unique English-style porter—was ultimately the recipe for its success.

The profitability of the brewing industry in Ontario was also dependent to a large extent on waves of temperance sentiment. In the post-1860 period, anti-liquor legislation manifested itself throughout Canada with increased frequency. The Dunkin Act, passed in the United Provinces of Canada in 1864, made it possible for any county or municipal council to prohibit retail trade within its borders by majority vote of electors; this was known as "the local option".

In 1878, the Dominion government passed a temperance act, the Scott Act. Large sections of the Maritime Provinces voted in favour of the new act, but in Ontario, Support for temperance was not as widespread. By the turn of the century, however, this began to change, and many breweries began to close across the province. By 1888, Labatt, Carling, and Kent were the sole breweries left in operation in London according to the city directories, and it remained that way until the Canadian Temperance Act was passed in 1916.

As a war policy, between 1916 and 1917, strict temperance legislation was passed in all Canadian provinces, and all alcohol, except for medicine and scientific purposes, was prohibited. Mike Baker and Glenn Phillips assert that this legislation closed the doors of the Kent Brewery for good. Joseph Hamilton's death certificate shows him as having retired from the brewing business in 1916 (Certificate Number 026246). In 1918, the city directories list the property at 197 Ann St. as vacant for the first time.

Following the closure of the Kent Brewery, 197 Ann St. continued to play a role in London's industrial life. It functioned as a garage in the 1920s, immediately after the period of vacancy. Other highlights include its use as a cigar factory, a cheese factory, and a bicycle shop.

From 1930–1938 it was used as a winery, which first appears as the Royal Winery, and then Adelaide Winery, which had been licensed in 1918, and which sold "Fine Wines & Champagnes". Adelaide Winery was bought by the London Winery.

It has also been used as an automotive repair shop at multiple times in its history, as well as other automotive-related uses (the Stark Truck Service and the A-1 Delivery Service). Today, it is home to Williams Downtown Automotive Service. The large industrial spaces that lent themselves to making beer, wine, cigars, and cheese, were easy to adaptively re-use for garaging bicycles, cars, or trucks.

Beginning in 1984, the property began to regularly house tenants in addition to serving its commercial role. From the information available, the tenants seem to have been primarily students.

1.4.3 Talbot North and the Carling's Creek and CPR Corridor

The Talbot North neighbourhood, and especially the Carling's Creek and CPR Corridor, are defined by the residences of the people who worked in the four major 19th century industries on Ann Street (the Kent Brewery, the Carling Brewery, Arscott's Tannery, and the Hyman Tannery). These industries, in turn, were defined by Carling's Creek, since the industries were set up to take advantage of the motive power and water it provided.

Many of the people who worked in these industries, at all levels in the companies, lived in the immediate vicinity. The variation in housing on Ann Street and the immediate neighbourhood, from worker's cottages, to double-housing, to row housing, to the larger structures lived in by the owners, tell this story. Up and down Ann Street, and on nearby streets, we see tangible evidence of a range of incomes, from workers (146-154 Ann Street) to foremen (724 Talbot Street - Edward Boles, foreman at Carling's, 127 Ann Street - James Arscott, foreman at Hyman's) to owners (Joseph Hamilton's house at 183 Ann Street). Taken together, these properties tell a complete story.

2.0 Request for Designation

On December 11, 2019, the London Advisory Committee on Heritage requested that the property at property at 179 Ann Street BE REFERRED to the Stewardship Sub-Committee for research and evaluation for a possible heritage designation. The Stewardship Sub-Committee undertook research and evaluation of the property at 179 Ann Street.

3.0 Cultural Heritage Evaluation

3.1 Evaluation

The property at 179 Ann Street was evaluated using the criteria of O. Reg. 9/06. A summary of the evaluation is included below.

Table 1: Evaluation of property at 179 Ann Street using the criteria of Ontario Heritage Act Regulation 9/06.

Cultural Heritage Value	Criteria	Evaluation
Physical/Design Values
The property has design value or physical value because it,	Is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material, or construction method		No x	The property at 179 Ann Street is not a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material, or construction method.
	Displays a high degree of craftsmanship or artistic merit		No x	The property at 179 Ann Street is not believed to demonstrate a high degree of craftsmanship or artistic merit.
	Demonstrates a high degree of technical or scientific achievement		No x	The property at 179 Ann Street is not believed to demonstrate a high degree of technical or scientific achievement.

Historical/Associative Values

The property has historical value or associative value because it,	Has direct associations with a theme, event, belief, person, activity, organization or institution that is significant to a community	Yes x		This property is valued for its direct associations with the Kent Brewery (the third most significant historic brewery in London after Carling's and Labatt's), and the Hamilton brewing family, particularly John Hamilton, who ran the brewery from 1861–1887, and his son, Joseph Hamilton, who ran the brewery from 1887–1917.
	Yields, or has the potential to yield, information that contributes to an understanding of a community or culture	Yes x		This property is valued for its potential to yield information on the history of the Talbot North neighbourhood (prioritized in Heritage Places 2.0 as the area of highest importance for a future potential Heritage Conservation District). This property is valued for its potential to yield information on the nationally-significant brewing history of London-Middlesex. This property is valued for its potential to yield information on the Carling's Creek and CPR corridor (a distinctive sub-area of Talbot North). The property is valued for its potential to yield information on the community of people who lived and worked in the 19th Century industries that built up around the Carling's Creek and the CPR railroad.
	Demonstrates or reflects the work or ideas of an architect, artist, builder, designer or theorist who is significant to a community		No x	The property at 179 Ann Street is not known to demonstrate or directly reflect the work or ideas of an architect, artist, builder, designer, or theorist.

Contextual Value
The property has contextual value because it,	Is important in defining, maintaining, or supporting the character of an area	Yes x		This property is valued because it is important in defining, maintaining and supporting the residential character of the area, in particular, defining, maintaining and supporting the variation in housing along Ann Street and in the near vicinity, housing lived in by people who worked in the four major industries that grew up around Carling's Creek, from workers to foremen to owners.
	Is physically, functionally, visually, or historically linked to its surroundings	Yes x		This property (179 Ann St) is valued because it is historically linked to two properties immediately to the east: the Kent Brewery building (197 Ann Street), and a house built by brewer Joseph Hamilton (183 Ann Street). This property is valued because it is visually, physically, and functionally linked to 197 Ann Street, tangibly demonstrating the 19th Century pattern where owners (and the family of owners) lived next to their companies. Joseph Hamilton clad the Kent Brewery (197 Ann Street) in a similar buff brick to the brick he used in building his residence next door at 183 Ann Street. This, in turn, was similar to the brick used for 179 Ann Street. Thus, the brick used for 183 and 197 Ann Street echoes that used for 179 Ann Street, which was also owned by the Hamilton family. 179 Ann Street was the first of the three structures to be clad in brick. Taken together, these three structures are visually and functionally linked: they present a rare Canadian example of a 19th Century brewery district, where the brewers' houses are preserved along with the brewery building.
	Is a landmark		No x	The property would not be considered a landmark.

3.4 Integrity

While integrity is not a measure of architectural/design value, there is a high degree of retention of original elements of the cultural heritage resource at 179 Ann Street. The basic elements of the vernacular cottage style are all extant: the side door, the symmetrical segmental arch windows with brick voussoirs, the hipped roof line, the transom over the front door, and the bay window to the east with window lintels distinctive of the North Talbot area. The historic London buff brick is intact, and the symmetry of the windows is maintained on the west elevation.

3.5 Authenticity

Authenticity speaks to whether the design of the structure communicates today as an expression of its period and architectural style. This is a very typical and largely unaltered example of a workman's cottage of mid 19th century London: simple front elevation, basic layout and neat size with plain doors and windows, with the slight stylistic flourish of a handsome bay on the east elevation.

4.0 Conclusion

The property at 179 Ann Street is a significant cultural heritage resource that merits designation under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act due to its historical associations and contextual value. The property at 179 Ann Street is worthy of conservation.

179 Ann Street, together with 183 Ann Street and 197 Ann Street comprise a distinct and authentic group, even though of different architectural styles, partly united by what appears to be almost identical brick.

The property is valued because of its associations with the Kent Brewery. Between 1886 and 1916, the Kent Brewery was one of only three breweries in London, the other two being Labatt's and Carling's. In an era where other small-scale local breweries were closing for reasons such as fires, temperance, and increased competition, the Kent Brewery was able to grow. The Kent Brewery was well-known for its English-style porter and had a reputation for brewing good quality local beer. Kent got its name because its beers were made from flavoured white hops imported from the renowned hop fields of Kent, England. Its name is not to be confused with the Kent family in London's early history.

The historic Carling's Creek, though now largely underground (a "lost creek"), nevertheless retains strong historical resonances to this day. It was described as a potential mill seat—a site of economic potential—in 1793 (See Appendix C). This was one of the small number of significant features noted about London by the Simcoe expedition that decided London's location. The property is sited abutting the former creek bed.

This property is valued because it is important in defining, maintaining and supporting the early residential character of the Talbot North neighbourhood, and the Carling's Creek and CPR corridor, which is defined by the residences of the people who worked in the four major 19th century industries on Ann Street (the Kent Brewery, the Carling Brewery, Arscott's Tannery, and the Hyman Tannery). These industries, in turn, were defined by Carling's Creek, since the industries were set up to take advantage of the motive power and water supply it provided. Talbot North has the highest priority for consideration as a potential Heritage Conservation District according to Heritage Places 2.0.

Many of the people who worked in these industries, at all levels in the companies, lived in the immediate vicinity. The variation in housing on Ann Street and the immediate neighbourhood, from worker's cottages, to double-housing, to row housing, to the larger structures lived in by the owners, tell this story. Up and down Ann Street, and on nearby streets, we see tangible evidence of a range of incomes, from workers (146-154 Ann Street) to foremen (724 Talbot Street - Edward Boles, foreman at Carling's, 127 Ann Street - James Arscott, foreman at Hyman's) to owners (Joseph Hamilton lived at 179

Ann Street at later at 183 Ann Street). Taken together, these properties tell a complete story.

5.0 Recommendation

That on the recommendation of the Stewardship Sub-Committee, notice be given under the provision of Section 29(3) of the Ontario Heritage Act R.S.O. 1990, c. O. 18 of Municipal Council's intention to designate the property at 179 Ann Street to be of cultural heritage value or interest for the reasons outlined in Appendix E of this report.

Acknowledgments

Acknowledgments to Hayley Caldwell for allowing the use of material from her 2017 Public History Heritage Property Research for 197 Ann Street, to Hilary Bates Neary for her assistance in land registry records research, to Dan Brock for genealogical information, to Janet Hunten and Theresa Regnier for researching tax assessment and collectors rolls, to Joe O'Neil for photography, to Mark Tovey for providing historical and chronological information, and to Maggie Whalley on her work identifying the architectural details of the property.

Bibliography

Baker, M. & Neary, H. B. (2003). London Street Names: An Illustrated Guide. Toronto: Lorimer.

Brock, D. J. (2011). Fragments from the Forks: London, Ontario's legacy. London, Ont: London & Middlesex Historical Society.

Caldwell, H. (2017, December 5). 197 Ann Street: Evaluation of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest. Public History Heritage Designation Reports. AFC 338, London Neighbourhood and Building Resource Collection. Western University, Western Archives.

Canada's Historic Places: <https://www.historicplaces.ca/en/home-accueil.aspx>

Census. Various years.

City Directory. Various years.

Death records.

Goodspeed, W.A. and C.L., Publishers. (1889). History of the county of Middlesex, Canada.

List of Breweries in Canada: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/List_of_breweries_in_Canada

Land Registry Records. Various years.

London Old Boys. London, Ontario, Canada. Semi centennial, 1855-1905. (1905). London, Ont.: London Printing and Lithographing.

London City Directories 1856-2013. Ivey Family London Room.

Museum London (London, Ont.) (2006). A new London, 1914: Selections from the Orr Photographic Collection.

Phillips, G. C. (2000). On tap: The odyssey of beer and brewing in Victorian London-Middlesex. Sarnia, Ont: Cheshire Cat Press.

Phillips, Steven J. (1989). Old-House Dictionary: An Illustrated Guide to American Domestic Architecture 1600 to 1940. Lakewood, Colorado: American Source Books. p. 99.

Priddis, Harriett (1909). The Naming of London Streets. Historic Sketches of London Ontario Part II. London, ON. The London and Middlesex Historical Society.

Tax Assessment Records. Various years.

Appendix A – Location

Figure 1: Property location of 179 Ann Street

Appendix B – Images

Front of 197 Ann Street, illustrating original voussoirs above door and the two front windows. (Photo Credit: Hayley Caldwell).

Front of cottage at 197 Ann Street, showing profile of bay window on left.

Side of 179 Ann Street, illustrating bay window.

Closeup of front doorway of 179 Ann Street, showing voussoir in detail.

Close-up of bay window on the left side of 179 Ann Street, showing North Talbot lintel.

Kent Brewery building at 197 Ann Street (left) with the two residences associated with the Hamilton family, 183 Ann Street and 179 Ann Street in background right, illustrating Kent Brewery site looking west.

The Kent brewery (far left) and the two residences associated with it, 183 Ann Street (centre) and 179 Ann Street (right), illustrating Kent Brewery site looking east. The brick on 183 and 197 echoes the brick on the cottage at 179. John Hamilton owned all of these properties, and Joseph Hamilton lived in both 183 and 179 Ann Street at different times. The only other identifiable example in Canada of an extant brewery building with the brewer's house still intact next door is Alexander Keith's brewery in Halifax (see Appendix D)

Kent Brewery, London Old Boys Semi-Centennial 1855-1905, published 1905.

Photograph of the Kent Brewery after “extensive alterations and additions were made” by Joseph Hamilton “near the end of the [19th] century” (Phillips, 155).

Kent Brewery building, October 2020

Apart from a new door in the centre, the main Kent Brewery building still looks much as it did at its peak, when the photograph above was published in 1905.

The main brewery building

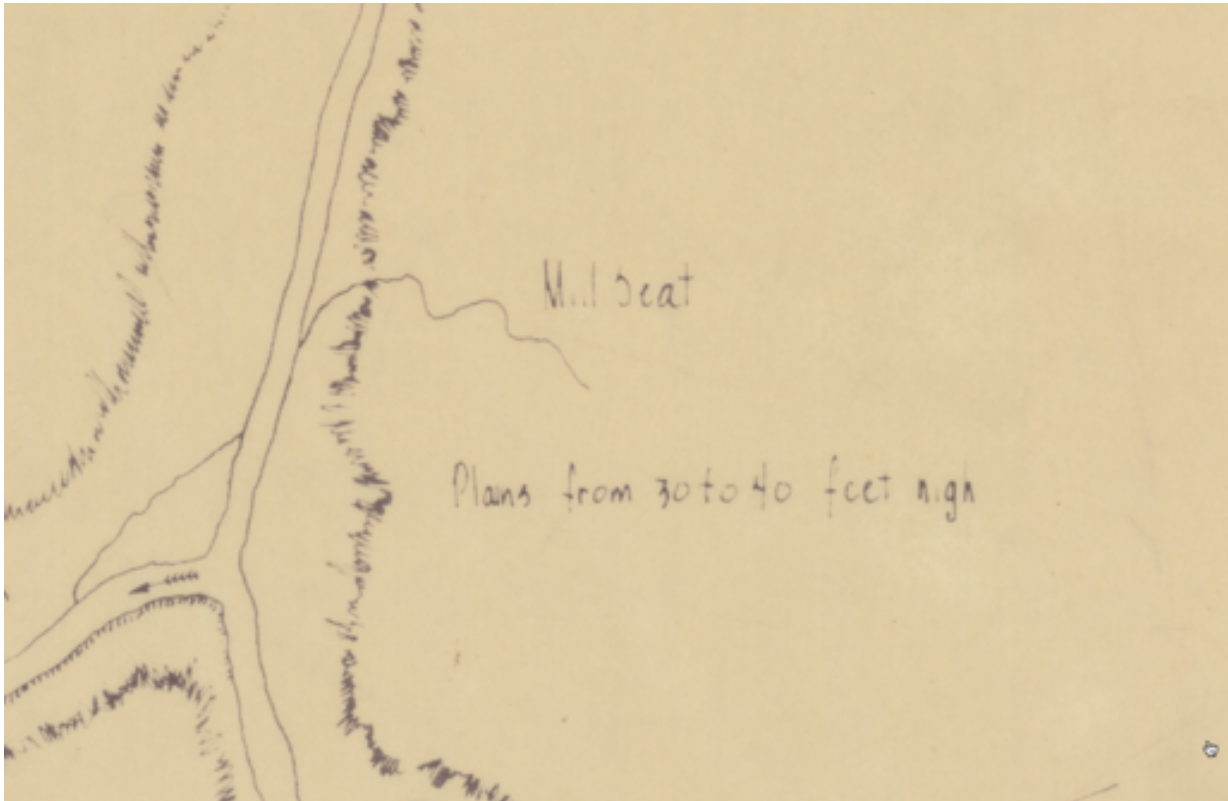

The brewery washhouse

sa

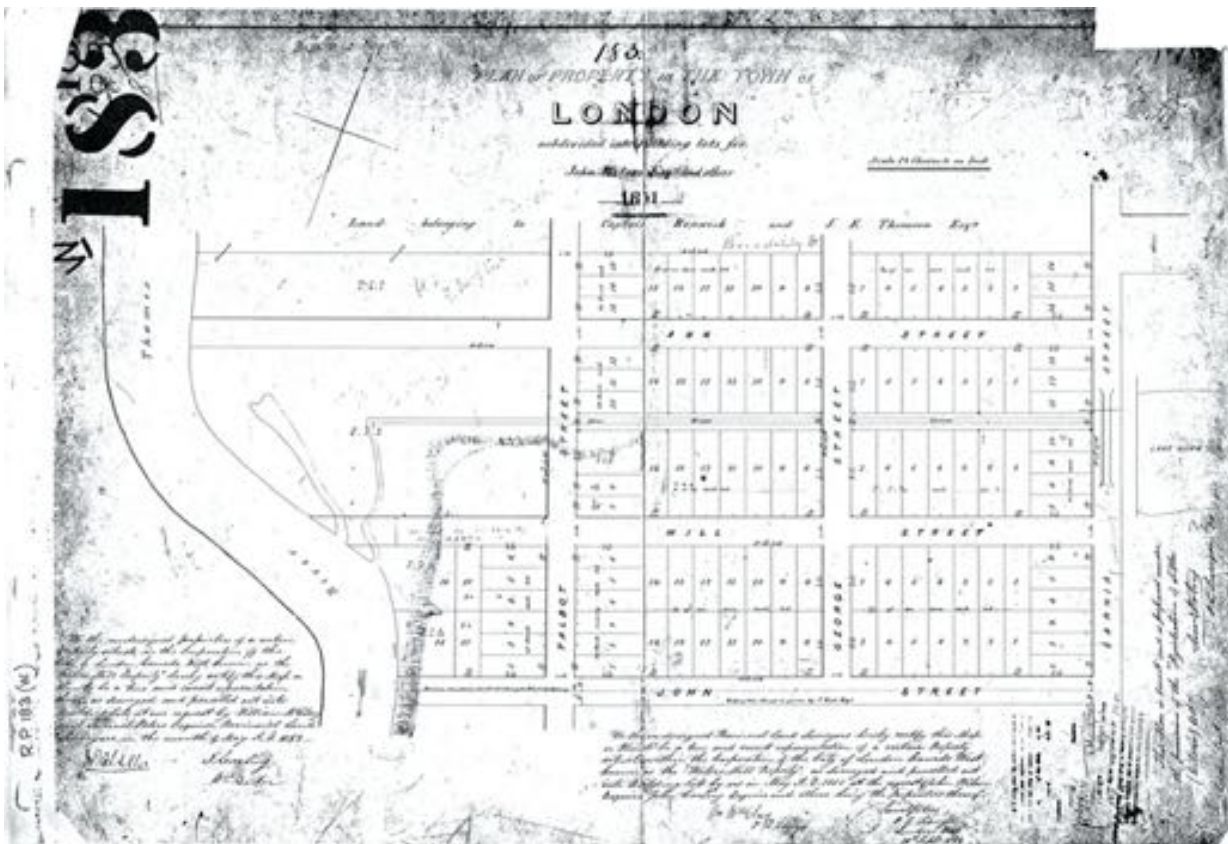

Image 5: Main brewery building (left) and brewery washhouse (right)

Appendix C – Historical Documentation

Detail from Grant map made from notes made during Lt-Gov. John Graves Simcoe's 1793 expedition to what would become London ON. Carling's Creek is one of the few features noted. A potential "Mill Seat" meant a place of economic potential. In 1836, forty years later, Thomas Waters made good on this economic promise by setting up Waters' Mill on the Creek. Map produced by surveyor Lewis Grant in 1830 based on field notes of Augustus Jones from 1792–1793.

In 1851, the Waters' Mill property was surveyed and subdivided by a consortium that included John Carling, John Wilson, and future London Mayor William Barker. The Creek would later be re-channelled west of Richmond. (RP 183(W)).

OLDEST REMAINING INDUSTRIAL BUILDING IN CARLING'S CREEK AND CPR CORRIDOR

Contextual Value

Hyman's Tannery 1867

Kent Brewery 1859

Arscott's Tannery Est. 1866, rebuilt c. 1869

Second Carling Brewery 1875, rebuilt 1879

1881 Rev 1888 Fire Insurance Plans

Other industries came to see the advantages of the motive power provided by the creek. Those industries came to include the Carling Brewery (est. 1843 on Waterloo Street), the Kent Brewery (est. 1859), Arscott's Tannery (est. 1866), Hyman's Model Tannery (1867), and the second Carling Brewery, built in 1875, and rebuilt in 1879. Carling beer became a global brand. Arscott's Tannery spawned one of Canada's largest tanneries (Samuel Arscott & Co.) in Benton, N.B.

KENT BREWERY!

BEST GENUINE ALE AND PORTER.

Hotels and Families Supplied.

JOHN HAMILTON,
Ann Street, - - London, Ont.

1878. Ad for Kent Brewery found in London City Directory 1877-1878, during the era of the Kent Brewery when John Hamilton was brewer. Glen Phillips, On Tap: The Odyssey of beer and brewing in Victorian London-Middlesex. Page: 76.

John Hamilton's son Joseph Hamilton used images of his beer labels in advertisements as part of his enterprising branding strategy. Compare the black-and-white beer label facsimiles in the add above, and in the two ads below, with the real labels on the next page. Glen Phillips, On Tap: The Odyssey of beer and brewing in Victorian London-Middlesex, page: 36 – "While dark ale, porter and stout dominated most of Victorian Canada's beer world, brewers hardly ignored changes in public taste. Joseph Hamilton supplied steadfast traditionalists with his London Porter and accommodated those who wanted something a bit lighter with his Amber Ale."

Figure 4: Kent Brewery advertisement from 1903 Old Boys Reunion Book, p. 54, showing label facsimile.

Figure 4: Labels for Hamilton's London Porter and Amber Ale from 1889. Fisher Rare Book Library, U. of Toronto.

John McNab Hamilton

BIRTH 12 JULY 1824 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

DEATH 9 OCTOBER 1887 • London City, Ontario, Canada

Facts

Age 0 — Birth

12 July 1824 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 2 — Birth of Sister Sarah

Hamilton (1826-)

30 Oct 1826 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 5 — Birth of Brother Daniel

Hamilton (1830-1914)

06 Mar 1830 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 8 — Birth of Brother James

Hamilton (1833-1914)

06 May 1833 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 23 — Marriage

19 Nov 1847 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Agnes Horn

(1828-1888)

Age 23 — Birth of Daughter Elizabeth

Hamilton (1848-)

2 April 1848 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 25 — Birth of Daughter Janet Hamilton (1850-1904)

24 May 1850 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 29 — Birth of Daughter Agnes Hamil-

ton (1854-1915)

abt 1854 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 36 — Birth of Son Joseph

Hamilton (1860-)

6 December 1860 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 36 — Birth of Daughter Helen Hamil-

ton (1860-)

6 December 1860 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Family

Parents

John Hamilton
1791-1861

Janet McNab
1796-

Spouse & Children

Agnes Horn
1828-1888

Elizabeth Hamilton
1848-

Janet Hamilton
1850-1904

Agnes Hamilton
1854-1915

Joseph Hamilton
1860-

Helen Hamilton
1860-

Mary Hamilton
1863-1902

Jemima Hamilton
1868-

Sources

Ancestry Sources

1861 Scotland Census

1871 Census of Canada

Ancestry Family Trees

Ontario, Canada, Deaths, 1869-1938 and Deaths Overseas, 1939-1947

Age 36 — Death of Father John

Hamilton (1791-1861)

26 May 1861 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 37 — Residence

1861 • Dunfermline Burgh, Fife, Scotland

Relation to Head of House: Head

Age 38 — Birth of Daughter Mary Hamil-

ton (1863-1902)

1863 • London, Middlesex, Ontario, Canada

Age 43 — Birth of Daughter Jemima

Hamilton (1868-)

abt 1868 • London, Middlesex, Ontario, Canada

Age 47 — Residence

1871 • Ward 02, London, Ontario, Canada

Marital Status: Married

Age 56 — Death of Sister Margaret Hamil-

ton (1819-1880)

1880 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 57 — Death of Sister Janet

Hamilton (1816-1881)

28 Dec 1881 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland

Age 63 — Death

9 October 1887 • London City, Ontario, Canada

Genealogical information on brewer John Hamilton and his family. Hamilton was an ale brewer in his hometown of Dunfermline in Fife, Scotland, before coming to Canada and taking over the Kent Brewery.

Joseph Hamilton

BIRTH 6 DEC 1859 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland
DEATH 23 MAY 1943 • London, Middlesex, Ontario, Canada

Facts

- Age 0 — Birth
6 Dec 1859 • Dunfermline, Fife, Scotland
- Age 2 — Arrival
1861
- Age 2 — Residence
1861 • Dunfermline Burgh, Fife, Scotland
- Age 3 — Arrival
1862
- Age 12 — Residence
1871 • London Ward 2, London, Ontario, Canada
- Age 22 — Residence
1881 • Ward 2, London City, Ontario, Canada
- Age 23 — Marriage
31 May 1883 • London, Middlesex, Ontario, Canada
- Susannah "Susie" Fletcher
(1863-)
- Age 32 — Residence
1891 • Ward 2, London City, Ontario, Canada
Marital Status: Married; Relation to Head of House: Head
- Age 42 — Residence
1901 • London (City/City) Ward/Quartier No 2, London (City/City), Ontario, Canada
Marital Status: Married; Relation to Head of House: Head
- Age 52 — Residence
1911 • London City, Ontario, Canada
Marital Status: Married; Relation to Head of House: Head

Family

Parents

John McNab Hamilton
1824-1887

Agnes Horn
1828-1888

Spouse & Children

Susannah "Susie" Fletcher
1863-

Ella May Hamilton
1886-

Mabel A Hamilton
1888-

John Horn Hamilton
1891-1915

Lawrence Joseph Hamilton
1896-

Edward William Fletcher Hamilton
1896-1923

Sources

Ancestry Sources

- 1861 Scotland Census
- 1871 Census of Canada
- 1881 Census of Canada
- 1891 Census of Canada
- 1901 Census of Canada
- 1911 Census of Canada
- 1921 Census of Canada
- Ancestry Family Trees
- Ontario, Canada Marriages, 1801-1926
- Ontario, Canada, Deaths, 1869-1938 and Deaths Overseas, 1939-1947
- Scotland, Select Births and Baptisms, 1564-1950

Age 61 — Residence
1 Jun 1921 • London, London, Ontario, Canada
Marital Status: Married; Relation to Head of House: Head

Age 83 — Death
23 May 1943 • London, Middlesex, Ontario, Canada

Occupation
Brewer

Genealogical information on brewer Joseph Hamilton and his family. Joseph Hamilton took over the brewery after his father's death and made it sufficiently successful that he was able to build the substantial brick residence that still stands next door to the Kent Brewery at 183 Ann Street.

Table 2: City Directory listings for the property at 179 Ann Street

[House built in 1893 by brewer Joseph Hamilton of the Kent Brewery]

1881 Havercroft Mrs, t

1884 Coin Wm / Private grounds

1888 Hamilton Joseph

1890 Hamilton Joseph

1891 Ralph, Richard

1894 (p. 32 Turner Wm

1895 Stockdill Frederick

1900 Dalton John J

1905 Wilson Spencer H

1910 Mrs C Crawford

1915 Crawford Mrs C

1916 Crawford Mrs C

1920 Endall F W

1925 Clark, I Wilbert

1930 Clark, Wilbert I

1935 Clark, Wilbert I

Appendix D – Comparative Analysis

19th Century Breweries in London ON with owner's residence on the brewery site

Although no 19th Century brewery buildings remain in London ON other than the Kent Brewery, there do exist images of both the original Carling Brewery and the original Labatt Brewery as they appeared in the mid-19th Century, around the time the Kent Brewery was established.

W. & J. Carling's City Brewery (~1850s)

John Hamilton and Joseph Hamilton both had their residences next to their brewery. Although those residences are not pictured here, Samuel Peters Jr.'s map of London ON in 1855 shows that both John Carling and Thomas Carling similarly had residences next to their brewery. Unlike the houses that John Hamilton owned, and Joseph Hamilton lived in, the Carling residences are no longer extant.

John K. Labatt's London Brewery, c. 1860. (The Kent Brewery was established in 1859).

John Labatt's residence can similarly be seen next to his brewery. Although the Labatt plant remains at this location, this mid-19th Century brewery, and the brewer's residence pictured, are no longer extant. The reconstructed "Labatt Brewery" in the Fanshawe Pioneer Village was created in 1967 for Canada's Centennial.

Early Breweries in Canada

Since there are no breweries in Southwestern Ontario where the brewer's house was preserved next door, a scan of Canadian Breweries was conducted to identify extant breweries where the brewer's house was also intact.

Alexander Keith's Brewery, Halifax (1837). Credit: Canada's Historic Places

The Alexander Keith's Brewery site is grander than the Kent Brewery site, however it is comparable to the Kent Brewery site in that it includes both the original (Georgian Style) brewery building and an adjacent residence that the brewer built for himself (below). Based on a scan of historic Canadian breweries in Wikipedia and in Canada's Historic Places, Alexander Keith's may be the only other early brewery site in Canada of this kind.

Alexander Keith's residence

Adaptively reused buildings near the Kent Brewery

The following examples from the near neighbourhood of 197 Ann Street illustrate that creative adaptive re-use of old buildings, even plain buildings, is the norm in this neighbourhood.

Campus Hi-Fi Building (built in the 1880s). Buildings don't have to be grand to be adaptively re-used. Humble structures can lend charm and variety to their surroundings. This building, which now houses the iconic Campus Hi-Fi, was built and used as a brick stable in the 1880s.

The 1911 Fireproof Warehouse, which was turned into The Village Corners. The Village Corners development shows that it is possible to take a commercial building and turn it into a showpiece. The back of this building can be seen from the front door of the Kent Brewery.

The 1909 Murray-Selby Shoe factory building at Piccadilly and Richmond Streets. The industrial feel of the factory was preserved while creating an airy modern atrium at the rear of the building.

The Station Park development added density while incorporating the 1892/93 CPR railway station.

The CEEPS, built as a hotel in 1890 to capitalize on the then newly established CPR railroad, is now a brew pub.

Nearby buildings showing the range of accommodation lived in by the people who worked in the industries of the Carling's Creek and CPR corridor

Double houses and row houses are a characteristic feature of the neighbourhood.

146-154 Ann St. today, with extra story added.

724 Talbot Street (home to Edward Boles, labourer and later foreman of Carling's Brewery). Note the bay window with a Talbot North lintel, similar to 197 Ann Street.

127 Ann Street, home to James Arscott, originally of the Arscott Tannery which was almost immediately to the east of 127 Ann Street. James Arscott was later foreman of the Hyman Tannery.

Figure 6: Heritage listed properties (yellow) and heritage designated properties (red) near 179 Ann Street (blue dot).

Appendix E – Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

Legal Description

LOTS 4, 5, 6 & 7 AND PART LOT 3, SOUTH SIDE ANN STREET PLAN 183(W) DESIGNATED AS PART 1, PLAN 33R-20622; CITY OF LONDON

Description of Property

The property at 179 Ann Street is located on the south side of Ann Street east of St. George Street. The property at 179 Ann St. is a side-hall plan vernacular cottage with typical symmetry, hipped roof and local London buff brick of the mid-19th century, built prior to 1881.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

The property at 179 Ann Street is of significant cultural heritage value or interest because of its historical/associative values and its contextual values.

This property is valued for its direct associations with the Kent Brewery building to its east (the third most significant historic brewery in London after Carling's and Labatt's), and for its associations with the Hamilton brewing family, particularly John Hamilton, who ran the brewery from 1861–1887, and his son, Joseph Hamilton, who ran the brewery from 1887–1916.

The property at 179 Ann Street was owned by brewer John Hamilton, and lived in by his son, brewer Joseph Hamilton, following his marriage to Susannah Fletcher, and before he took the reins of the Kent Brewery. John Hamilton and his son Joseph Hamilton ran the Kent Brewery at 197 Ann Street (the third most significant historic brewery in London after Carling's and Labatt's). Between them, John and Joseph Hamilton ran the Kent Brewery for 55 years.

The historic Carling's Creek, though now largely underground (a "lost creek"), nevertheless retains strong historical resonances to this day. It was described as a potential mill seat—a site of economic potential—in 1793 (See Appendix C). This was one of the small number of significant features noted about London by the Simcoe expedition that decided London's location. The creek is still empty into the river just south of Ann Street Park, and is daylight (i.e. visible) between Waterloo and Colborne near Pall Mall. The property at 179 Ann Street is in near proximity to the former creekbed.

This property is valued for its potential to yield information on the history of the Talbot North neighbourhood (prioritized in Heritage Places 2.0 as the area of highest importance for a future potential Heritage Conservation District). This property is valued for its potential to yield information on the nationally-significant brewing history of London-Middlesex. This property is valued for its potential to yield information on the Carling's Creek and CPR corridor (a distinctive sub-area of Talbot North), and the lives and community of the people who worked in its industries.

This property is valued because it is important in defining, maintaining and supporting the early residential character of the Carling's Creek and CPR corridor, which is defined by the residences of the people who worked in the four major 19th century industries on Ann Street. These industries, in turn, were defined by Carling's Creek, since the industries were set up to take advantage of the motive power it provided. This property is valued for its associations with Carling's Creek, and with the early industrial history of the Carling's Creek and CPR Corridor.

Many of the people who worked in these industries, at all levels in the companies, lived in the immediate vicinity. The variation in housing on Ann Street and the immediate neighbourhood, from worker's cottages, to double-housing, to row housing, to the larger structures lived in by the owners, tell this story. Up and down Ann Street, and on nearby streets, we see tangible evidence of a range of incomes, from workers (146-154 Ann Street) to foremen (724 Talbot Street - Edward Boles, foreman at Carling's, 127 Ann Street - James Arscott, foreman at Hyman's) to owners (Joseph Hamilton's house at 183 Ann Street). Taken together, these properties tell a complete story.

This property (179 Ann Street) is valued because it is historically linked to the Kent Brewery building and to the house built by Joseph Hamilton (183 Ann Street) immediately to the east. This property is valued because it is visually, physically, functionally, and historically linked to the Kent Brewery building at 197 Ann Street. Joseph Hamilton clad the Kent Brewery in a similar buff brick to the brick he used in building his residence at 183 Ann Street. The brick used for 183 echoes that used for 179 Ann Street, which was also owned by the Hamilton family.

Taken together, these three structures (179 Ann Street, 197 Ann Street, and 183 Ann Street) are visually and functionally linked: they present a rare surviving Canadian example, along with Alexander Keith's Brewery in Halifax, of a 19th Century brewery district, where the brewers' houses are preserved along with the brewery building.

Heritage Attributes

Heritage attributes which support and contribute to the cultural heritage value or interest of this property include:

1. Side door
2. Symmetrical segmental arch windows with brick voussoirs
3. Hipped roof line
4. Bay window to the east with lintel distinctive of Talbot North neighbourhood
5. Symmetry of windows maintained on west elevation