Dear Members

During the International Figure Skating Championships, London's heritage was important enough to be the subject of an outdoor slideshow. We wanted to present our history to our visitors. Before the closing ceremonies could take place, the City was once again debating whether a major element of that history should be destroyed. Fortunately, a plan has been created to preserve the building at 275 Thames Street by moving it to Grey Street. The Hidden History of Hamilton Road group endores this plan and believes that any and all efforts to support it are to be commended. Any help your Committee can provide would be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely

Steven Liggett
