BACKGROUND

The attached summary serves to provide the highlights of the ReThink London discussion papers along with the results of how Londoners rated each of the eight key directions.

The next steps in the review process will be the drafting of the new Official Plan for the City, which will include internal and external consultation with service areas and agencies, as well as public consultation in the fall. It is anticipated that the draft policies for the new Official Plan will be prepared before the end of the year.

The Land Needs Background Study (Urban Growth Boundary review for non-industrial lands) and the Industrial Land Development Strategy have been prepared as a reference documents to the City of London's new Official Plan, arising from the Rethink London process. Conclusion of these studies and Council's approval is an integral component of ReThink London for setting the ultimate growth boundary for the next 20 years.
